Dear US District judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly,

The fact that Microsoft has blatantly failed to comply with any honest behavior including the Tunney Act, as evidenced by the interpretation of the acts creator, via his affidavit filed with the court, comes as no surprise to anyone.

Surely any company which doesn't disclose that their top monopoly monger, StevieBoy Balmer met with his kin, (Dickie to drunk to disclose his three drunken driving convictions Cheney,) can't be counted on to comply with a little ole paperwork disclosing the millions spent lobbying the rest of congress and their staff's.

We all know Steve and Dick didn't talk technology shop. They talked about the EnronBushCheney energy monopoly policy! But hey, by golly, thats priviledged information according to Dick. Or maybe they had a concensual sexual relationship, But hey a concenting sexual relationship isn't covered under executive priviledge !!!! So forget antitrust,enrongate,insider trading influence peddling and the rest! Lets be good Republicans and spend 60 million and see if those secret meetings were were about Steve bobbing Dick!
